Duty.

Sweeping changes in the personnel of the squadron commanders of the Atlantic battleship fleet, will be announced by the Navy Department tomorrow.

It was learned today that Admiral Schroeder will remain as fleet commander, for probably another year. The three squadron commanders, Admirals Comiy, Murdock, and Vreeland, will, however, be relieved from their commands and ordered to shore duty.

The new squadron commanders have not yet been named. All three of the admirals who are to be relieved, have completed the regulation tour of sea duty, and it was on this account alone that they are to be transferred. MAY GET DEGREE
